

Brown, Yell Named Editors of Prestigious Journals

Professors William Brown and Mitchell Yell of the Special Education program have been named editors of two important journals in the discipline. Brown is the new editor of the Journal of Early Intervention, while Yell serves in the same role for the Journal of Disability Policy Studies. Both men will edit the respective publications for five years.

Brown served as an Associate Editor of the Journal of Early Intervention for five years. The journal is published by SAGE Publications and is focused on research and practice related to intervention for infants and young children with special needs and their families. The Journal of Early Intervention is the official professional journal of the Division of Early Childhood of the Council for Exceptional Children.

Yell was selected as editor of the Journal of Disability Policy Studies in February. The publication is the top peer-reviewed journal in legal and policy issues and persons with disabilities. It is published by the Hammill Institute. The Institute, along with the Council for Exceptional Children, is considered one of the top two publishers in special education. The purpose of the journal is to publish original research and thought-provoking conceptual articles regarding compelling issues in ethics, policy and law related to individuals with disabilities.